Note. Participants were categorized as correctly identifying their state's HIV case surveillance policy if they answered yes to the question describing the appropriate HIV case surveillance policy and no or "don't know" to questions describing other policies. Those who answered "don't know" to all questions were categorized as not knowing the policy, and other response patterns were considered incorrect.
